Basketball Bingo Lingo

3-point shot: a field goal worth 3 points because the shooter had both feet on the floor behind the 3-point line when the ball was released; also counts if one foot is behind the line while the other is in the air.

3-second violation: The paint is the area inside the lane lines from the baseline to the free-throw line. If an offensive player has a foot on or inside these lines for 3 seconds or longer, the player will be called for a 3-second violation. There is no restriction on the time that defensive players can occupy the paint.

Offensive rebound: a rebound of a team's own missed shot.

1-and-1 or 1-plus-1: in college, a free-throw attempt awarded for certain violations that earns the shooter a 2nd attempt only if the first is successful.

Personal foul: contact between players that may result in injury or provide one team with an unfair advantage; players may not push, hold, trip, hack, elbow, restrain or charge into an opponent; these are also counted as team fouls.

Possession arrow: in college, the possession arrow is used to determine which team's turn it is to inbound the ball to begin a period or in a jump ball situation.

Rebound: when a player grabs a ball that is coming off the rim or backboard after a shot attempt.

Shot clock: a clock that limits the amount of time that a team has to shoot the ball; 24 seconds in the NBA; in college, 35 seconds for men, 30 seconds for women.

Traveling: a floor violation when the ball handler takes too many steps without dribbling; also called walking.

Turnover: when the offense loses possession through its own fault by passing the ball out of bounds or committing a floor violation.
